

MAY CALL OUT TROOPS TODAY

Governor Says He Will Wait Until Request Comes From Proper Authorities.

MORE POLICE ARE NOW ON DUTY

Many Riots Occur Early This Morning.—City Prepares To Face The Worst Troubles Yet, in The Next Few Days.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Chicago, May 4.—The strike situation this morning has taken no turn for the better and from present indications the day promises to be full of rioting and bloodshed. Early this morning a hurry-up call was sent in from Archer avenue where a crowd of colored strike-breakers were besieging a party of white men. The police raised the blockade and the district was quieted down.

Want Troops
It is expected on all sides this morning that the employers' association will again seek to have the governor send militia to help preserve order. The report that the four regiments of infantry and one of cavalry in the city of Chicago are ready for active duty, is correct, but it is probable that they will not be called out, as both the sheriff and Chief O'Neill claim they have the matter well in hand. Strike-breaker Frank Curry, who is lying concealed waiting recovery from his wounds, believes troops have become a necessity now.

Only on Authority
It is announced that Governor Deane has stated that he will not send troops until requested by the proper authorities. This means by either the mayor or sheriff. All requests for more protection by the big wholesalers must now come from Secretary Job of that organization. This is done so that there will be no confusion and more men sent than are necessary. The four hundred extra strike policemen are now on duty.

More Wagon
This morning the employers' association have sent out eleven hundred wagons, which are amply protected by police. The strikers are in a dangerous mood and the continuation of the trouble may result in the worst riots in the history of the city. The streets in the downtown district have become really dangerous to the average pedestrian and many women have been injured in the rushes which occur wherever the big vans begin to unload their contents.

Strike Spreads
The strike has spread today to the Walsh-Boyle company and the Corbin company. Thirty-two teamsters have refused to deliver any goods to the houses now boycotted and have walked out. Their places will be taken by strike-breakers. Thirty strike-breakers arrived for Montgomery, Ward & company from Cincinnati this morning, but four deserted when they saw what the conditions were.

Will Accept Deliveries
Two hundred and fifty South Water street commission merchants today decided to accept all deliveries from the strike-bound express companies, despite the threat of nine hundred produce commission teamsters to strike if such deliveries are attempted. The general public will be seriously affected in case these teamsters go out.

Is Held for Murder
John Torga, the driver of the bus that ran over and killed Police Sergeant Cummings while the latter was engaged in strike duty, has been held to the grand jury this morning on five thousand dollars bail, charged with manslaughter.

Fatally Injured
Charles Riebling was attacked and probably fatally injured by strike-breakers at the Hub bars, Nineteenth and Dearborn streets, this morning. The trouble began by the shooting of John Danberry, a negro, in the leg. Riebling had nothing to do with the riot, which the police quelled.

Go to See Deane
A committee of twelve prominent business men left on a special train at noon for Springfield to urge the governor to send troops to Chicago. They will declare open rebellion exists in the streets and the police authorities are powerless to preserve

Jury Failed To Agree, And The Show Girl May Now Be Allowed Her Freedom.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
New York, May 4.—Nan Patterson has quite recovered this morning from the complete collapse in court, where she lay for twelve minutes in a dead faint, while the jury was making the second and last report that it could not agree. She expressed a keen disappointment of the failure of the jury to acquit her. Her counsel will move at the earliest opportunity she be admitted to a nominal bail, which will not be opposed by the district attorney, it is thought.

It is learned the last ballot was eleven for manslaughter in the first degree and one for acquittal. Leon, the juror who stood out, refused to be brought over. Counsel Levy said the girl would never be brought to trial again.

SENATE HAS BUSY DAY SCHEDULED

Will Try To Pass Bill Giving People Chance to Vote on State Capitol.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, May 4.—The senate by a vote of 14 to 12 advanced the bill to submit to a vote of the people the question of whether the state capitol shall be removed from Madison after January 1, 1908. The bill to allow Oshkosh to convey to the state a prospective site was also advanced. The other capitol removal bills designating Hudson, Grand Rapids, Milwaukee and Belmont, were killed. The assembly advanced the uniform school textbook bill by a vote of 48 to 26, after a debate in which the republican factional strife was dragged out. The bill to define the "Free Pass" and make the present anti-pass law extend to public officials who may have positions with railroads, was advanced by a vote of 76 to 7. La Follette vetoed the bill to reduce the wage exemption from garnishment from $60 to $30. He based his action on the multitudinous protests from wage-earners from all over the state who had written him to veto the bill.

Riot on the West Side.
Rioting centered Wednesday night on the west side in the neighborhood of the river. Wagons making retail deliveries for State street department stores were the object of attack. One delivery wagon belonging to Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co was seized by a mob, its horses cut loose and the wagon dumped into a clay hole. A negro driver of another wagon, making deliveries for the Fair, was beaten into unconsciousness. Among other weapons used on him were three shovels, which were broken over his head.

The night rioting began at sundown. The Fair store wagon which had been used in retail deliveries on the west side was proceeding in Harrison street to the store's barn, under escort of Policemen Tom Sharkey and James Kelly. A drunken man, picking up a brick, followed the wagon, cursed the driver and then threw the brick. At this a crowd joined in the attack and rained bricks, stones and bottles for a few minutes.

Crowd Attacks Coal Wagons.
Of the downtown rioting, one of the most serious disturbances occurred a few minutes after noon in front of the United States Express building, 87 Washington street. This riot was the culmination of a series of disturbances accompanying the delivery of five loads of coal at the Great Northern hotel and the return of the empty wagons to the Edwin F. Daniels Coal company's yards at the foot of South Water street.

As the five wagons, driven by non-union teamsters turned into Washington street from Dearborn and started west, the crowd following them was supplemented by union sympathizers, who came running from all directions. When the caravan was directly in front of the Express company's building a lump of coal was thrown at one of the colored drivers. This started the riot. Coal, brickbats, and sticks were thrown at the wagons from all sides.

Disturbances at Fair Store.
This riot was the outgrowth of a disturbance which began at 10:30 o'clock in the alley in the rear of the Fair store. Seven wagons loaded with coal from the Daniels company had been driven into the alley. The crowd thronged into the alley after them and several lumps of coal were taken from the wagons and thrown at the colored teamsters. John Brennan, one of the non-union colored teamsters, drew a revolver and fired two shots into the crowd. The bullets went wild and none were injured. Brennan was arrested and taken to the Harrison street police station.

Policemen mounted the wagons and took knives, revolvers and blackjacks from the teamsters. Two of the wagons were unloaded at the Fair and the others were taken to the Great Northern hotel and the Union League club.

MORE RIOTING TAKES PLACE IN WARSAW

Social Democrats in Several Parts of the City Are Bound To Have a General Strike.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Warsaw, May 4.—Rioting occurred in several parts of the city this morning, and further trouble is imminent. The social democrats appear determined to enforce the manifesto proclaimed a general strike. A dispatch from Libau says comrades attempted to rescue the revolutionary leader from twelve Cossacks on the street today. A fight followed, in which all the Cossacks were either killed or wounded. The captive and his friends escaped.

RUSSIAN FLEET HAS BEEN SEEN AGAIN

Reports Come In of the Appearance of Boats in Two Localities.

Singapore, May 4.—The British steamer Selangor arrived today and reports they passed the division of Russian warships off Jugrah, midway between the island of Penang and Singapore at nine this morning. The fleet, evidently Nebogatoff's, which effected a safe passage into the China sea is probably on its way to join Rojstvensky. The report says two transports of the fleet put into Sadanga on the north coast of Sumatra apparently damaged as the result of a collision.

RIOTER SLAYS MANY POLICE

Disturbances Mark The Celebration Of The Anniversary of Liberty In Warsaw.

DAY FOR MOURNING IS ARRANGED

Social Democratic Committee Is Very Anxious To Have the Day Properly Celebrated By The Citizens.

Warsaw, May 4.—At least one assassination and much rioting developed Wednesday during the demonstrations and processions in Warsaw in celebration of the anniversary of the proclamation of the Polish constitution. An unknown man shot and killed a police sergeant in Hozza street at 9 o'clock in the morning. The murderer escaped.

A large crowd of students and others assembled in the afternoon in the neighborhood of the old house once occupied by the Polish patriot Kiliński, a prominent figure in the revolution of 1794, and attempted to start a demonstration, but they were dispersed by Cossacks, who freely used their whips.

Thirty corpses of victims of Monday's shooting were removed in five vans at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning from the police station to Brudno cemetery. Police and soldiers closed the streets around the station to prevent a hostile demonstration and arrested several loiterers.

Day of General Mourning.
The committee of the Social Democratic party of Poland and Lithuania issued a manifesto urging everybody to observe Thursday as a day of general mourning, because the police did not permit the bodies of those killed in the disturbances of May 1 to be buried with proper ceremonies.

The manifesto declares that business and traffic must cease and that all shops, offices and restaurants must be closed.

The strike at the Warsaw factories continues. The printers struck in the morning and the afternoon newspapers did not appear.

Murder and Riot in Lodz.
Lodz, May 4.—Four men Wednesday morning shot and killed a police sergeant and severely wounded a detective who tried to arrest them. Serious riots occurred in the streets during the night. The military fired on a crowd, killing four persons and wounding several others.

Easter Monday Riots.
St. Petersburg, May 4.—Reports of disturbances in various places of European Russia during Easter Monday are coming in. The gravest occurrence was at Miltopol, where a mob for several hours held high carnival and burned a portion of the town.

At Nijni Novgorod a regular battle occurred between soldiers and the crowds in Millionaia street. The soldiers fired, killing one person and wounding many.

Expect Political Liberty Soon.

Ivan Kaleiff, the assassin of Grand Duke Sergius, has appealed to the supreme court for a rehearing of his case on the ground that at his trial he was not defended by his own counsel, to which he was legally entitled.

May Cut Off Russians.
Paris, May 4.—A telegram to the Temps from St. Petersburg says that dispatches received there through Russian channels confirm the report that the Russian cruisers stationed at Vladivostok have left that port. Military circles at St. Petersburg, it is added, expect General Oyama will hasten the investment of Vladivostok for the purpose of cutting off Admiral Rojstvensky's squadron from the Russian naval base. The officials do not expect a junction of the Russian warships before May 9, as Admiral Nebogatoff must take on coal before proceeding to the island of Hainan.

Japs Are Wide Awake.
Notwithstanding denials, it appears that the Japanese officials are carefully observing the continued presence of vessels of Admiral Rojstvensky's squadron off the Indo-China coast and are seeking information from the French authorities concerning the nature and duration of their stay. The members of the legation have addressed several inquiries to the foreign office, asking particularly whether the ships were inside French waters. The reply given was that all the vessels of the Russian squadron had left French waters.

MRS. VANDERBILT'S GEMS ON CONEY ISLAND DANCER

Fifty Thousand Dollars' Worth Of Jewelry Is Recovered By New York Police.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 4.—The reported recovery by the police of a $50,000 necklace belonging to Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has been disclosed and throws light on the mystery surrounding the recent robberies of the baggage of passengers on the East Coast railroad. Two men now under arrest made confessions, the police declare, which have led to the recovery of a large amount of loot. Scores of detectives have been at work for several months in an effort to trace the stolen jewelry, efforts having been directed chiefly to the recovery of a valuable necklace alleged to have been stolen from Mrs. Vanderbilt. A baggageman who had taken this from one of Mrs. Vanderbilt's trunks confessed his robberies and search of his home made possible the recovery of all the plunder. He is supposed to have taken except the $50,000 necklace.

OLD TIMERS TELL AS TO THE GAMES

TALK OF DAYS OF PAST GLORY IN BASE BALL.

WHAT THEY WROTE ABOUT

Men Who Played in Janesville in the Seventies Delight to Recall the Old Days.

A few copies of the Gazette containing the first of my ancient baseball history were sent to a friend of mine in Portland, Ore., who resided at Winona, Minn., during the seventies, and just to show me the strength of his memory regarding Janesville baseball affairs, he sent me considerable information for future articles, most of which, while interesting to me personally, I did not care to have published. But here are some excerpts: "And don't forget the day the Mutuals stopped off at Winona and you wore a white flannel suit, all of Janesville's best was along, including Jackman and most of the Carter family, and after a solemn consultation of the judges of the supreme bench sitting in chambers, it was ordered that you should not be permitted to play. Oh, but they were really days; did any youngsters ever have any more innocent fun than we? If you want any more men for a lot of back number, or rather putrid reminiscences, let me know." And in a later communication: "Why don't you send me those putrid reminiscences of '76 and '77? I suppose you heard the article about the St. Paul trip 'The Crime of '77' when you cancelled the Winona date and staid over to play the second game with St. Paul and all got broke. D—n bad management, but I suppose you would lay it to Jackman." My old friend, Joe Heald, who is evidently a subscriber, in writing me of the great stake race that he won on the ice in Canada, said: "For heaven's sake, Frank Smith, I wish you would quit resurrecting those old baseball games and just talk about something good. Tell us about some of those good old horse races that we used to have when we went to Clinton with Massasoit." And then he admits that he is growing old. John Ward, with whom I had a nice visit in New York a few years since in his acknowledgment of receipt of a '77 copy, said: "The paper you sent me was received yesterday and I was much interested in your screed. If there are any more of them would you be kind enough to send me copies? I don't suppose any one else would be able to write such articles, for I doubt if any one else has that data." More papers were sent which he passed along to Bushong and in another letter enclosed the latter's acknowledgment of receipt of same, a part of which is quoted: "I do not believe you knew how much satisfaction and pleasure your thoroughness would give—not only to myself, but there are three boys and three girls in my family and each and everyone has enjoyed the papers and the '77 news. Quit a moon ago since you struck out 'Al' Spaulding in that Chicago game with three men on the bases and old man Hurlbert sitting on an easy chair just back of the backstop. My oldest son is quite a pitcher and a mighty good catcher. When he saw that I had six errors in one game he hollered murder—wondered how I could ever get on any team." And the following from Frank Bliss, captain of the '77 Mutuals: "I was more than pleased to receive the two Gazettes containing accounts of the old 1877 ball games. You out Van Wrinkled old Rip himself, by nearly eighty years. I played those games all over in my mind as I read your resurrected accounts of them. I have often wondered where and what had become of the old-timers of the Mutuals—not only the players—but also those whose backing and enthusiasm made possible for a place the size of Janesville to have a baseball team that gave as good an account of itself by its playing as did the old Mutuals—and the name was not a misnomer as it was by a mutuality of good feeling on all sides—players and managers alike—that nerved the players on to do their best. I have often thought that there is a stimulant about a genuine mutual regard between employer and employee that tends to produce the best results for all concerned—and this was exemplified in 1877 in Janesville. If there are any more of the old games written up, hope you will send me the papers. Sincerely hope you will feel free to write and reproduce more accounts of those old games, for the present generation, and I am sure that the old-timers that read the Gazette will find them fully as interesting reading as anything published in the baseball line of today. Please remember me cordially to any of my old-time friends that you may see in Janesville, especially Clem Jackman, Charley Potter and Charley Valentine." FRANK L. SMITH.

Labor Notes

Prosperity has once more made the immigration question a live one. Immigrant labor unions in all sections of the country are recording their protests against the continuance of immigration of the present character in such enormous volume. February holds the record for immigration with a total for the four weeks of 67,117 additions to the population from foreign shores. This is an increase of 42 per cent over February, 1902, that being the previous year of greatest immigration, though it is clearly to be far outstripped by the record of the present year.

In the last six months, the immigration figures are 32 per cent larger than for any similar period. The immigration from Russia has been $1,766 for the past six months.

Compared with the preceding year there was a large decrease in the number and magnitude of trade disputes in Canada during 1902. In all there were 10 strikes and lockouts in the past year, as compared with 160 in 1902 and 123 in 1901. There were approximately 15,665 persons involved directly or indirectly in industrial disputes.

Miss Gertrude Barnum, of Chicago, has instituted an aggressive campaign to organize the working women of New York. During the textile strike in Fall River she found homes for more than 200 girls who had been thrown out of employment.

Th A. F. of L's receipts since the San Francisco convention reached $206,174 and the expenditures $102,745. There are now affiliated with the Federation 118 international unions, 35 state federations, 672 city central bodies and 11,173 local trade unions and federal unions.

REJECTED BECAUSE TEETH WERE POOR

Fails to Pass Examination for Army—Another Recruit for Signal Corps.

Two applicants for enlistment in the signal corps, secured through the efforts of Officer Raguse, were examined yesterday by Col. Cooke of Milwaukee. One man was rejected on account of the poor condition of his teeth. The other, James C. Martin, a student at the Valentine School of Telegraphy, was acceptable and left for Milwaukee, from where he will go to Fort Myer, Virginia. A telegram was received by the recruiting officer yesterday stating that the signal corps was nearly full now and that all applicants, unless exceptionally good men, mentally, morally and physically, should be rejected. More men are recruited for this part of the service in Janesville than probably any other city in the union because of the location of the telegraph school here. The other departments of the army that are still open are the infantry, the coast and field artillery, the cavalry and the hospital corps. Mr. Raguse returned from Milwaukee and Stoughton Monday. In the latter named place he found the majority of probable applicants busy in tobacco warehouses, though his visit may bear fruit in a month or two. At Milwaukee he talked with several who said they would come here to enlist within a few weeks.

HAROLD MYERS RAN FAST HALF-MILE IN TRYOUT

At Madison and Will Be One of the Four Who Compose Relay Team That Goes to Minneapolis.

In the tryout held to select the material which is to compose Wisconsin's relay team in the Minneapolis track meet May 6, Harold Myers of this city covered the half-mile in two minutes and three seconds. Trainer Temple stated that it was the fastest half he had ever seen run without a trainer. It was the Janesville young man's first appearance on the outdoor track in that event. Walter, Ridout, and Stevens were the three other members selected for the relay team. Myers is two years younger than any other member.

Today is the Opening of the Season of the Wisconsin State League.

The first ball will be thrown in the new Wisconsin State Baseball league today. La Crosse, Freeport, and Green Bay are the cities favored by selection for the opening games, and in each city the inaugural will take the form of a public demonstration, the game to be preceded by the usual parade. The opening of the league is of state interest, for it is the first time in thirteen years that there has been a league organization in Wisconsin.

It can be said that there was just one rock on which these otherwise excellent federations of the olden days went to pieces—that was the roofless salary arrangement. In their eagerness to get a winning team, managers bid their heads off and the bottoms out of their exchequers. The regular schedule of the league embraces 110 games. In mileage to be traveled, a remarkably equitable apportionment has been made. The total mileage of each team as scheduled is: La Crosse, 2,385; Freeport, 2,535; Beloit, 2,385; Oshkosh, 2,301; Green Bay, 2,548; Wausau, 2,512.

Each team will wear a white uniform on its home grounds, with a distinctive color on foreign diamonds. Green Bay's traveling uniform is pearl gray, Beloit's Yale gray, Oshkosh, Wausau, and Freeport have navy blue, each with its distinctive trimmings, and La Crosse wears green.

The new league is in the hands of thorough baseball men. President John T. Powers of Chicago has been a successful organizer and manager, and an enthusiastic promoter of all baseball interests. Pink Hawley, the old pitcher, has the La Crosse team; Jack Corbett manages Wausau; W. Kinnally, late of the Cotton States League, has the Green Bay team; George Wilbur, who headed the old champion Oshkosh team of the Northwest league, is running the Beloit end of it; Morey Crall is the Oshkosh manager, and Nick Melvin, late of the Rockford team, has Freeport's fortunes in hand.

John Daly, holler washer at the house here, went to Watertown last evening to work for a few nights.

William Owen, Wisconsin passenger agent for the Chicago & Alton road, was in the city today on business.

Engineer Schoenberg reported for work this morning after a few days' vacation.

Conductor Swettors is relieving Conductor Norton on the Fond du Lac stock run.

Fireman Wescott is laying off from the Fond du Lac passenger.

The dynamometer car was in the city again today to test locomotive number 1069.

W. J. Gilterson, representative of the Grand Trunk, transacted business here today.

Fireman Murphy, of the south end way freight is off duty.

St. Paul Road

Emmett Jordan, who unfortunately lost a portion of his foot in a wreck in the Janesville yards several months ago has commenced work in the roundhouse. After sixty days' service he will begin firing on the road.

J. N. Elliott of the roundhouse wiping force is laying off, threatened with pneumonia.

Locomotive number 1353 is here from Broadhead for repairs.

Richard Berry returned to work today after several days' vacation, which was spent in Chicago. He reports the Chicago teamsters' strike to be every bit as bad as described in the newspapers.

STOCK MARKETS MAKE PROGRESS

WHAT IS BEING DONE IN THE EAST AS TO PRODUCE.

WEEKLY LETTER ON WHEAT

General Conditions Are Good—Market Is Not Panicky as in the Past Few Weeks.

New York.—Wheat.—While there have been rallies as shorts have covered up from time to time, bear confidence has been increasing and prices have generally worked lower under the complete abandonment of May by the bulls, the good weather for the new crop, and bearish estimates of the yield. Quotations are now approaching a level that seems more reasonable, and we may expect the market shortly to settle down after the extraordinary excitement and activity of the last two or three months and become more normal. At the close of week, May wheat in Chicago was selling around 87 1/2c, July 82c and September 78 1/2c.

Big Short Interest

There can be no doubt whatever that the market has accumulated a big short interest, and while we deem it very probable that a still lower level is warranted and will gradually be secured, it seems to us that the market is more of a two-sided one again, and that any change for the worse in the weather which has been favorable for the last ten days or two weeks would cause active covering and that an advance on this would probably uncover stop-loss orders on the short side sufficient to give the market quite an upward turn. In addition to this there has been a quiet demand for July on the way down, coming apparently from large trade interests, and it remains to be seen whether the decline, will not create an improved cash demand that will make the statistical position in July seem strong enough to cause a decided improvement in prices.

Scalping Market

For the immediate future it seems to us that there will be excellent opportunities for scalping the market. There is little choice perhaps as to the side selected. Short sales on any advance of 2 cents from the quotations named above, or purchases for a turn should the market work a couple of cents lower would seem equally attractive. For our part we do not believe in extremely cheap wheat next winter and expect to see low prices for the year between now and September 1.

Corn Sold

Corn—Corn has sold off some 1 to 2 cents a bushel, partly in sympathy with wheat, partly owing to liquidation in preparation for the first May delivery day. It has seemed, however, as if the concentrated long interest in May was prepared to take up about all the May corn tendered which is expected to reach an enormous total. It is understood that the longs have made arrangements to handle the grain which may in part be shipped to the east and the seaboard. The market is now about 5 cents a bushel off from the best and back to the point where we began advising purchases. The situation in the grain market has, of course, undergone a very material change as a result of the weakening of the wheat position and the evidence that there would be plenty of wheat to go around, and it is also a fact that corn receipts have been running rather heavier than some had expected, while exports recently have been less than looked for, and Argentine corn shipments are now increasing. These phases of the situation would seem to argue against any material advance, but the evening-up of May contracts is yet to be experienced. If this should result in a sharp advance as a result of flurry among shorts, it looks to us as though sales of September would be in order. If we should have any very sharp break, the market might be bought as it steadies.

Oats.—Oats have only partially yielded to the declines in other grains. Fluctuations having been limited by the comparative absence of speculative interest. Oats are neither cheap nor dear around these prices, but supplies are full, and should markets for other grains develop further weakness they might reasonably work a little lower.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, May 4, 1865.—Honorable Discharge.—We learn that L. B. Casswell, Esq., Commissioner of the Board of Enrollment for this district, has been honorably discharged from the service, as provost marshal's office are winding up their business, and there is no further need of such an officer. He has discharged the duties of his office in a faithful and gentlemanly manner, and in returning to his home in Jefferson county, will leave many warm friends behind.

The News.
The surrender of the forces under Kirby, Smith and Dick Taylor, ends the rebellion so far as the armed resistance of the South is concerned. So rapidly has the bogus confederacy crumbled into ruins since the fall of Richmond, that the people of the north hardly realize the strength and stubborn enemy who has fought us so persistently for four long years on more than a thousand battlefields, is humbled to the dust at last, and that our conquering legions will soon return to their homes again, with the halo of victory upon the starry banner. Yet such is the fact. Their armies are conquered and dispersed, their chief executives are prisoners of war, their general executive officer is a fleeing vagabond with a large sum offered for his apprehension, and their institution of slavery which they thought to make perpetual, forever destroyed. Thus before the sacred dust of the last great martyr of freedom is committed to its kindred dust, the slaveholders' rebellion vanishes from the face of the earth.

President Johnson offers a reward for the arrest of several notorious villains known to have been parties to the assassination of the President. Among them is Jeff. Davis, "Late of Richmond, Virginia." It is positively stated that the remains of Booth were interred in the felon's burying ground, near the penitentiary. His head and heart were deposited in the army medical museum. The grave was carefully sodded and a strong guard placed over the cemetery.

Pitchers Invent New Curves

The Pinch Ball Is the Latest, Originated by Falkenberg --- Sudhoff's Jumping Rise Shoot Said to Rival the Noted Spit Ball.

Pitcher Fred Falkenberg of the Montreal team of the Eastern league has invented the latest baseball novelty. It is the pinch ball. Falkenberg states that it is thrown overhand and "off the thumb." In other words,

FITCHER HOWELL, ST. LOUIS AMERICANS. (Howell is the latest user of the spit ball. He practiced it last winter and now has it under excellent control.)

the ball revolves off the thumb as it is thrown, the thumb pressing the under side of the sphere.

"This pressure," says Falkenberg, "gives the ball a wicked and peculiar break just as it reaches the plate. It swerves sharply outward. The curve can be thrown with a slow ball as easily as with a fast one. This aids a pitcher a great deal when 'mixing' his delivery."

Falkenberg, who was "tried out" by Pittsburg a couple of years ago, states that he invariably uses the pinch ball whenever he gets two strikes on a batsman.

"I struck out six men in a recent game," he says, "simply by adopting this maneuver."

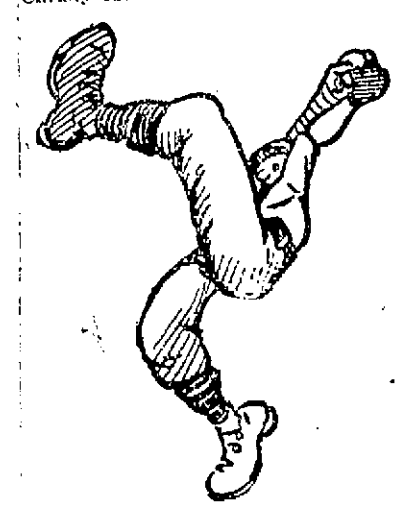

Will "Woe Willie" Sudhoff's jumping rise ball take a place by the side of the spit ball?

This is the momentous question now agitating the St. Louis enthusiasts who saw Sudhoff shut out the Clevelanders recently.

Despite the handicap of a sore arm, Willie made the Cleveland team of giants dance to his pitching like marionettes, and no one doubts who saw him shut the Anjouettes out that this new stunt is another snare and luvation of the pitcher to entangle the batter.

Sudhoff believes his ball will revolutionize the theory of curve pitching, but, as he naively said after the game in question, "every pitcher has his favorite ball and is apt to have his confidence in it destroyed at a critical stage of the game."

Asked for the explanation of the rising jump ball, Sudhoff said: "It is different from the rise ball of Charley Nichols and the jump ball of Christy Mathewson, but combines features of both."

STAR PITCHER AS THE ARTIST SEES HIM. tures of both. It passes over the plate at a man's shoulder and, jumping, rises, clearing its course slightly as it passes him. To make a hard hit the batsman must meet the ball squarely in the center. If he hits under the result is a fly that can almost surely be caught by one of the fielders. If he hits it on top the ball goes to one of the infielders."

Now For Big Race.

Transatlantic Contest For Kaiser's Cup, the Yachting Classic of Year.

The programme of the race for the ocean cup presented by his imperial majesty the German emperor has been issued by the American subcommittee of the Imperial Yacht club, which is composed of Commander H. G. Hebbelhaus, I. G. N., chairman, naval attaché, German embassy, Washington; Allison V. Armour, and C. L. F. Robinson.

The race will start on May 16 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at Sandy Hook lightship, off the New Jersey coast, and finish at the Lizard, England. The committee in charge of the start is composed of Commander Hebbelhaus, I. G. N., Oliver E. Cromwell, II. G. B., Parsons, Newbury D. Lawton and Edward H. Wales. All are members of the New York Yacht club, with the exception of the chairman.

The programme is complete and interesting. Half tone reproductions of the eleven starters are given, together with the color of hulls and the day, night and fog signals each will use.

These programmes are to be sent abroad by the first mail steamer and through the subcommittee in England distributed to the captains of all European steamers bound westward from May 10 as long as necessary.

On this side of the ocean the programmes will be given to the captains of all steamers bound to the eastward from May 17, as required.

By the aid of the programme the yachts can be easily identified. Special instructions will be issued by the officers of all the steamship companies that their captains shall keep the closest possible lookout for the racing yachts and report their sighting or spoken immediately upon reaching port. In this way it is believed that the competing craft will be frequently heard from. The programme as issued, is in part as follows:

The starting line shall be a line between a committee boat flying the burgee of the Imperial Yacht club and the Sandy Hook lightship.

The length and direction of the line are to be determined by the committee managing the start. The line is to be crossed leaving the Sandy Hook lightship to starboard.

A preparatory gun will be fired at 2 p. m., the club burgee lowered and blue Peter hoisted.

A warning gun will be fired at ten minutes past 2, blue Peter lowered and red ball hoisted.

The starting gun will be fired at quarter past 2 p. m., red ball lowered.

No protest will be entertained in connection with violation of the rules at the start of the race.

Yachts approaching the line under tow must drop the towline at the preparatory signal.

The international rules of the road at sea shall govern conduct of the yachts.

CAPTAIN CHARLES BARR, WHO WILL SAIL THE ATLANTIC.

with the addition that if an overlap exists between two yachts when both of them, without tacking, are about to pass a mark on a required side then the outside yacht must give inside room to pass clear of the mark.

A yacht shall not, however, be justified in attempting to establish an overlap and thus force a passage between another yacht and the mark after the latter yacht has altered her helm for the purpose of rounding.

In case a yacht infringes the above rule the committee will signal by short blasts on steam whistle and display official letters of yacht so infringing. Yacht so signalled must return and recross the starting line.

Should a yacht be infringing at starting at the appointed time and the committee boat not be in position it may start later, taking its departure from Sandy Hook lightship. No time will be credited on account of the delay.

Such yacht may not be towed to any point to the eastward of Sandy Hook lightship.

The finish of the race will be on a line bearing true south from the Lizard light-house on the coast of England and within signalling distance in the event of there being no mark boat at the finish line.

The competitors will be as follows:

Alba—Owner, Henry S. Redmond, New York Yacht club; owner on board.

Apache—Owner, Edmund Randolph, New York Yacht club; owner on board.

Atlantic—Owner, Wilson Marshall, New York Yacht club; Charley Barr, captain.

Endymion—Owner, George Lawler, Jr., Indian Harbor Yacht club; owner on board.

Pleur-de-Lys—Owner, Dr. Lewis A. Stimson, New York Yacht club; owner on board.

Hamburg—Owners, Hamburgherischer Verein Seefahrt and Norddeutscher Regatta Verein; representative on board, Adolph Tietjens.

Midgarde—Owner, Edward R. Coleman, Corinthian Yacht club of Philadelphia; owner on board.

St. George—Owner, Right Hon. Lord Brassey, Royal Yacht squadron; owner on board.

Thistle—Owner, Robert E. Tod, Atlantic Yacht club; owner on board.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Recently I have had a number of requests from mothers for the home treatment of whooping cough and chickenpox, and, although neither of them are considered very dangerous or serious diseases, yet it is always wise to have at hand a safe and thorough home treatment for the cure of such cases.

Whooping cough is an infectious, contagious, practically self-limited disease, peculiar to children, and usually occurring epidemically, although isolated cases are not infrequent, and one attack rendering the subject practically immune against the subsequent contagion. It is divided into three quite distinct stages. The time required for the development of the disease after exposure varies in different cases from 48 hours to eight weeks. While the disease is not particularly dangerous within itself, yet serious complications invariably follow improper treatment.

The first stage of the disease is largely catarrhal, the onset being very similar to that of a common cold, and lasting from one to five weeks. There is sneezing, watery eyes, slight fever, headache, indisposition, slight chilliness and constant distressing coughing.

The second stage is what is known as the paroxysmal stage. It is extremely distressing to the subject, and frightening to uninitiated attendants. Severe paroxysms are preceded by a peculiar sensation in the throat and chest, thus giving warning of an approaching attack. During these severe spells the air is all expelled from the lungs by several rapid and violent expiratory acts, followed by a rush of air to the lungs, characterized by a peculiar whoop. This procedure produces weakness, and the child grasps some handy object to support itself.

The third stage is what is known as the convalescent stage. It is a very critical period, because the subject is usually too active, persists in overeating and is liable to expose himself. This must be strenuously avoided.

The first stage of the disease is the proper time to apply treatment. The child should be kept well clothed, and especial care should be exercised to keep the feet warm and dry.

But where Home Health Club principles are employed there need never be any second stage. Put the child to bed and apply dry heat to the feet, and give the patient a diluted acetic acid bath, and follow with an injunction of olive or almond oil. Then give the child a cup of hot ginger tea or a five-grain (as much as you can hold on the point of a knife) dose of cayenne (cayenne pepper). This will generally be sufficient to break up the disease and prevent the impending attack.

After the second stage is reached, all that can be done is to take the best care of the patient, and thus avoid any complications, and also shorten the duration of the disease. Protect the child from draughts and dampness, and supply it with a plain, nutritious diet. Be very careful during the third stage to keep the child from overeating and exposure.

VARICELLA, OR CHICKENPOX.
This is a disease which need not be feared, inasmuch as it never, without complications, proves fatal. The greatest trouble is that there are frequently misgivings made in the diagnosis, chickenpox being called smallpox, and vice versa. Thus a patient who has chickenpox is scared to death by being told he has smallpox, and another, who really has the smallpox, is allowed to die in blissful ignorance, thinking he merely has chickenpox. In the one case a whole community is thrown into a panic and quarantined for no cause, and in the other the dread disease of smallpox is allowed to work its awful havoc unmolested.

I can see no reason at all for such blundering in the matter of diagnosis, for the two diseases are easily distinguished. They are both characterized by exanthema, but the eruptions are not at all alike.

Chickenpox is a contagious disease, which appears about five days after exposure. There may be slight febrile reaction and corresponding quickening of the pulsations; probably a slight headache, indisposition, lack of appetite, and perhaps a turred tongue, accompanied by slight nausea.

The eruptions which characterize chickenpox are most generally the first indications of the disease. These are tiny round red pimples, which appear on the forehead and face first, then over the other portions of the body. The next day they become filled with a white, milky fluid, and look like any white blister. They are never yellow nor indented, as are the exanthema of smallpox. They are very annoying, and the temptation to scratch them is almost irresistible. If they are scratched, however, they are liable to become angry and leave scars. Proper steps should be taken to avoid any unnecessary irritation to them. It will be well to cover very red or large blotches with perforated sticking plaster.

The patient should be given a bath in warm diluted acetic acid, and the feet rubbed with olive oil. Keep the feet warm and dry, and keep the room well ventilated. Supply a diet of light, plain food.

In the course of four or five days the patient will be all right again. Care should be taken to prevent a relapse, however.

CLUB NOTES.

Kentucky.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Doctor: My grandmother has a breaking out on her lower limbs between the knees and ankles which annoys her very much. It makes its appearance each fall as soon as the cool weather comes on and also in the spring as the weather grows warmer. In small red specks thickly scattered over the surface, being lighter red around the specks. They itch and burn and the flesh swells. It presents a rough, scaly appearance as it heals up and bothers her more or less for several weeks. She cannot wear yarn or black cotton hose nor sleep next to a blanket. Patched flour bound to the afflicted parts gives relief sometimes and a salve which we bought did great good last year. It seems to be a family trouble, as an older sister had it and a son is troubled with it also. She would be very glad of a remedy for it, as it is very uncomfortable for a person of 35 years to be so afflicted.

Thanking you in advance for any suggestions, I am, respectfully,

H. A. The suffering in the case of your grandmother is probably due to eczema and the treatment described in the book of Home Health Club lectures under the head of Eczema would aid greatly in a cure. The bowels must be kept active in such cases and the food should not contain much meat, especially pork or fat, fried foods, etc. The morning meal should consist largely of some wheat preparation with cream and sugar. Oatmeal should not be used by one suffering in this way. A generous dish of stewed prunes would also be good. Then apply the Home Health Club treatment as referred to and a cure will result.

Ruthven.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Doctor: . . . The especial suffering this time is in the back of the left temple of my husband's head, and is in the nature of an annoying, fluttering sensation and usually troubles him most during the evening. We would be especially grateful for advice leading to a cure.

Very truly yours,
MRS. S. E.

It would be wise to consult your family physician about the difficulty which your husband is having. The trouble may be a simple obstruction to one of the veins and it may be due to an injury to the nerve. Temporarily you should try the application of moist heat, to be applied in the same manner as other hot fomentations.

I have a letter from Tipton, Ia., simply signed "A Subscriber." Of course such letters are immediately destroyed, no name being given. If you will write again, giving full name and address, I will promptly and cheerfully answer your letter.

Readers of this paper are at liberty to write for information on subjects pertaining to health. All communications should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind., and must contain name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

PLAN TO SAVE THE BIRDS.

Society in Berlin Composed of Young Men Will Wage War Upon Women's Hats.

A society of young men in Berlin has adopted an extraordinary plan of campaign to prevent women wearing birds in their hats, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Warning is given them in a pamphlet that if they persist in this vain and wicked fashion they will be stopped.

In the streets by the members of the society and asked to remove the birds. If they refuse the request the enthusiastic crusaders will perform the office for them, using such force as may be necessary, and fines for this lawlessness will be cheerfully paid by the society.

Evidently there is much earnestness and sincerity in the scheme, but it is likely to arouse more sympathy for the women than for the birds, and the reformers may pay for their acts with broken heads. Nevertheless, a good cause is not necessarily damned by bad methods, and it is encouraging to note how widespread the movement is for the preservation of the birds.

In this great country it has made headway against great odds and is growing steadily in favor. A relentless slaughter that has resulted almost in the extermination of certain species finds few, if any, defenders now. Women who have bought ingenuities innocently enough have discarded them on learning that they are the symbol of a sordid and cruel commercialism. Others less sensitive will be taught in time that birds killed to adorn their mysterious headgear are generally considered to be the sign of a foolish pride and an unfeeling nature.

His Work.

"Young man," said the old merchant, sternly, "I caught you kissing the type-writer when I returned to the office this morning. What have you to say, sir?" "Why," replied his bright clerk, "you told me to attend to all your duties in your absence."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CASHIER GOLL UNDER ARREST

Banker Bigelow's Accomplice Is Taken Into Custody in Chicago

REFUSES TO TALK OF AFFAIR

Makes No Attempt to Shift Blame for His Conduct, Declaring He had Committed No Crime, Despite His Effort at Disguise.

Chicago, May 4.—Henry G. Goll, the defaulting assistant cashier of the First National bank of Milwaukee, who, by manipulating the bank's accounts, made possible the $1,400,000 defalcation by Frank S. Bigelow, president of the institution, was arrested in Chicago Wednesday. He was captured at the Lakota hotel, Thirtieth street and Michigan avenue.

Detective Sullivan of Milwaukee made the arrest. It was found that Goll had registered at the hotel under the name of A. C. Smith. For several days the detectives had been on his track. They had watched closely several of Goll's friends in Chicago. They knew that he had called up some of his Milwaukee acquaintances on the long-distance telephone.

Appearance Is Altered.

The appearance of the defaulting cashier was altered. He had discontinued the wearing of eyeglasses. The removal of these so changed his looks that the photographs sent out by the detective bureau would have been insufficient to identify him. He also had cropped his mustache and had exposed his features to the sun. He had been in the southern part of the state, he said, and had become tanned by living as much as possible out of doors.

The captive took his arrest philosophically. He did not even attempt to cast the blame of the affair on Bigelow.

"I have committed no crime," he said, "and I have nothing to fear." "Then why did you try to disguise your name?" inquired Detective Sullivan.

"Don't let us talk now," said Goll. "Let's go to dinner. Then we can take the first train for Milwaukee."

Gets Tip When Crash Comes.
When the crash came at the First National bank on April 24 the impending event is believed to have been "lipped off" to Goll. The crooked cashier and the under clerks had been going on unknown for months. False entries to the amount of thousands of dollars had been made in the books. Drafts on Chicago banks had been O. K'd. The reserve in the eastern banks also had been tampered with.

A week ago in a Madison street restaurant in Chicago the missing cashier was identified by a waiter who formerly had known him in Milwaukee. The detectives traced down this clerk and many others. Goll on his arrest mentioned this incident to show that he had not been a fugitive from justice.

Goll was taken to the Harrison street police station. At 6:30 o'clock he was taken to Milwaukee on a St. Paul train. He made no objection to going.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4.—Henry T. Goll left Milwaukee a week ago Monday. He hired a cab and drove to the county line. He walked six miles, until he reached North Cape, where he hired a farmer to drive him to Union Grove, and a liverman took him to Antioch, Ill. A few hours later he took a train for Indianapolis. He kept in hiding in Indianapolis on Thursday and most of Friday. Friday evening he arrived in Chicago. Goll refused absolutely to say anything about his affairs.

New South Wales Opals.

The finest opal known in Australia is obtained at White Cliffs, near Wilcannia, in the colony of New South Wales, where about 900 miners are in constant work. The best quality of these stones realizes occasionally as much as $350 an ounce. Up to the end of 1904 $4,000,000 worth of opals had been exported from New South Wales alone.

Normal Death Without Pain.

Normal death, if the phrase be permitted, is a painless occurrence, usually preceded by gradual loss of consciousness entailing no more suffering than going to sleep. It is not merely that the pain of death is trifling as compared with the physical pain of a scald; it is non-existent.

Dr. Saleeby, in the Academy.

Difficult Entrance to Church.

Perhaps the most remarkable place of worship is the Church of St. Gawain, on the coast of South Wales. The church is entirely surrounded by huge boulders, and access to it can only be had by ascending a number of crude steps cut out of the face of a rock. A Knight of the Round Table is said to have been buried within the precincts of St. Gawain.

CHAPTER XVI

ADAM, the goldsmith, waited late that afternoon for Christopher's return. Impatient at his delay and angry at the sight of the unfinished chalice, he paced up and down the room restlessly, pausing at frequent intervals to look out of the doorway with nervous anxiety toward the forest footpath.

"This passing strange," he muttered. "The lad's never done the like before. If he'd a thought of fear I'd say the storm delayed him, but such things as thunder showers 'ud ne'er bother Christopher. Nay," shaking his head, "the lad's willful and careth not that the chalice are undone."

Just then a shadow fell across the threshold. Adam came forward expectantly.

"Ah, bless me, Mistress Taunton!" he exclaimed in surprise. "Medhought 'twas Christopher. Happen didst see that good for naught as thou didst come through the forest?"

"I saw him not, good Adam," the dame replied, "but I walked rapidly, as I am in haste to reach the house of Sister Hemming, that thy son brought me word an hour since had been visited by the Lord with an affliction of numbness, so I betought me that my prayers and services might be of use at the bedside. Did thy lad stray away?"

"'Twas after the hour of noon that I sent him to the Mayland farm with a trinket that I mended for the young mistress," he replied. "I truth I would not ha' been in such good haste to send it had not thy good son Josiah warned me of possible evil contained in the papist symbol of the golden cross."

The woman threw out her hand in a manner that suggested hopeless resignation at the rashness of the old man's act and, addressing him harshly with tragic earnestness, said: "Thou didst send thy lad with that emblem of the black art, Adam Browdie. Forsooth," with an ominous shake of her head, "'twas no wonder thou that the storm rose betimes, turning peaceful elements into devil's turmoil, to bring honest folk to their knees calling on God to save them! Ah, sorrowful day!" she sighed drearily, then, raising her voice in rebuke, said, "'Twas thy duty, man, to ha' burned the wicked trinket instead of sending an innocent lad with it to bring destruction to him!"

Adam, pale with apprehension, covered back against the door. The words of his visitor were so positive and her manner carried such conviction with it that the old man was already agitated at the possible consequences of his foolish act.

"I must be on my way, good neighbor," Mistress Taunton lifted her skirts preparatory to leaving. "But happen thy lad returneth not by night-fall I would counsel thee to rouse the village, call the men out for a search, and if aught of harm hath befallen Christopher as a result of touching that cross," she continued sternly, with a threatening emphasis, "I wot measures must be taken at once to force the wearer of it to destroy it."

"Aye, aye!" the trembling old man concurred eagerly. "Such evil glimmers worn for the sake of wicked vanity should be destroyed. Mayhap, alas, enough harm hath been done already! Ah, woe is me! 'Tis bad time we ha' fallen out!"

"Truth hast thou spoken. God keep thee, Adam."

"And thee, good dame."

The woman passed on, grim and severe, and the shadow receded slowly from the threshold.

That night a party of men, carrying torches searched the forest vainly for the missing lad, calling his name loudly, then listening with straining ears for a response. But none came to their strong and eager cries, the accustomed stillness of midnight on the mountain being broken only by sounds of hurrying feet, shrieks of birds, roused from their nests by the unusual disturbance and glare of lights, as they flew through the trees with noisy clapping of wings, and the peculiar wailing sound of the wildcat as with gleaming eyes and showing its teeth savagely it slunk among the underbrush.

But it was not until morn that they found him. At the peaceful hour of dawn, when the sun was sending its first warm rays of light across the horizon blue, fluting the sky with rosy pink that presaged the coming of another glorious day of life and activity, Taunton shouted to the others that he had found him, and his companions, running to the edge of the precipice, saw the bruised and swollen body of poor Christopher, held securely by a protruding root of a gnarled oak tree that had caught under his jacket, tossing up and down on the rushing, tumbling waters of the stream below, his glazed eyes wide open and staring, looking vacantly into the shocked and sorrowing faces above him.

CHAPTER XVII

THE next day Sir Godfrey La Fabienne, accompanying the mistress of the Mayland farm, was riding up the mountain toward the village, slowly and with slackened rein, talking earnestly in low tones.

"Nay, Godfrey, I am not ill. But since the shocking news of Christopher's death I cannot lift his trouble from my heart," she was saying in reply, evidently, to some remark he had just made. "I do reproach myself that in mine own security I allowed the lad to follow his inclination and go into danger. One commanding word from me, with assurances that I would take all blame of the goldsmith's anger, would have sent him to the kitchen. Ah, luckaday!"

duct or her neighbors, took heart at her lover's fond words.

"Thy protection and love giveth me great comfort, Godfrey," she replied. Then, with a little sigh, "But, I wot, this is a most depressing neighborhood."

La Fabienne laughed lightly, amused at her last observation.

"See, yonder," she continued, "is Adam's cottage, the goldsmith, where poor Christopher's body lieth awaiting burial. Methinks the wraith of roses I sent yesterday was not enough to express my sympathy. I would like to offer Adam some gold, Godfrey. Happen the old man is in need in his hour of trouble."

At the sound of horses' hoofs Adam Browdie appeared at the door, and when he saw who it was drew back, with blanched face, his tongue cleaving to the roof of his mouth.

"I give thee good day, Adam," Margaret said, riding closer, "and I have much sympathy with thee in thy sorrow. Wilt take this small handful of gold, good man, as at times like these folk have many extra needs?"

The sun, glittering over the house, fell on the cross lying on her bosom, illuminating it. In Adam's fear and terror it was all he saw, and to his excited imagination it appeared to blaze forth, covering the whole front of her dress.

"Go on thy wicked way!" he cried in quivering tones, "and stop not before the door where thou hast wrought such dire evil! Thy wraith of roses lieth in ashes in the road! We applied a torch ere thy servant left, and thy gold, take it with thee. I want it not!"

He closed the door and fastened it, drawing the bar across with noisy violence. Margaret's face was white as she picked up her rein, and La Fabienne rode at her side with dark looks and flashing eyes.

"Gads, in France we have a man whipped for less than that! Mon Dieu," he exclaimed angrily, "were not "Go on thy wicked way!" the man so old and did not death lie in his household I would have him out! No man could live after those rough words to thee!"

The look of sad wonder in Margaret's eyes did not leave them as she guided her horse to the narrow footpath that led through the forest.

"I feel for them naught but good will and they treat me with keen dislike," she said. "Fain would I understand them. Dost get their meaning, Godfrey?"

"Fair love, thy pure and generous soul could never grasp the meaning of their cruel and wicked ignorance," he answered, then, seeing that the shadow still rested on her face, cried in vexed tones.

WHAT THIS MAN SAYS

Only Echoes the Sentiment of Thousands in Our Republic.

The Janesville reader is asked to thoroughly investigate the following: gentleman whose statement is published below will only be too pleased to answer any communication mailed to him if the writer really suffers from the annoying consequences which always attend inactive or weakened kidneys.

W. Samp, of 412 Euclid avenue, proprietors of the largest rock quarrying business in Beloit, says: "I had trouble with my kidneys for many years. It consisted mostly of a lame back aching back, and there were occasions when I had such severe attacks that I could not get out of the house for two or three weeks at a time. I was then practically helpless for it was painful to move. At other times it assumed a milder form, being a dull aching across my kidneys. I used medicines of different kinds but I never found anything that gave the satisfaction that Doan's Kidney Pills did. This remedy is worthy of a high recommendation and it is a pleasure for me to endorse it as doing all that is claimed for it."

Danderine

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR AND WE CAN PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.

That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It enlivens, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter:

Dear Doctor Knowlton:—
You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.
I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it.
Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.
Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

Danderine makes the scalp healthy and fertile and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp fertilizer and therefore the greatest hair-producing remedy the world has ever known.

It is a natural food and a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a 25-cent bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. per bottle

FREE. To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

Painless, Natural Childbirth.

Baby's coming into the world should be preceded by a certain preparation on the part of every woman who expects to become a mother. She owes it to a duty to her unborn babe, and to herself; her duty to her unborn babe is to use every means within her power to aid his entrance into the world. Baby cannot help himself in this matter, therefore mother must. Her Dire Revenge

Indian Girl Adored Soldier Lover, but He Proved False.

She Lured Him to a Trysting Place and Plunged Stiletto In His Heart—Once a Noted Beauty.

It is conceded on the southern border of Texas that the female bandit and smuggler who was wounded and captured by the Mexican rurales after a desperate battle on the Rio Grande is none other than a noted adventuress and all around bad woman who is well known in the Indian country as Zalia, "The Devil's Ace."

This strange character, who has experienced vicissitudes of fortune in her short career without a parallel outside of the wildest dreams of fiction, was born in an Indian village. Her father was a mysterious Frenchman who lived with the Comanches for more than half a century. He married the daughter of Iron Jacket and raised a large family of children. After the Comanches settled on their present reservation this Frenchman, whom the Indians called "Heap White" from the fact that he spent a great deal of his time in writing, built a home of no small proportions and devoted all of his really fine abilities to the education of his family.

He was especially proud of Zalia, who seemed to possess the love of the Indian's wild, free life, combined with graces and accomplishments like those of her father's ancestry in the sunny land of France. At that time one would have predicted for her a life of happiness and good fortune.

Zalia was the beauty of the family, and no one ever suspected her when she was a young girl of possessing the terrible traits of character that she afterward displayed. She spent one year at school either at Jacksonville, Ill., or a place of the same name in some other state, and when she returned to the territory it was easy to see that she had mastered many little arts that gave her considerable advantage over her sisters.

Sometimes she came to Fort Sill when the Indians were drawing supplies dressed as a Comanche maiden. In this costume it is said she was irresistible. She wore a robe literally covered with variously colored beads and sparkling gems, the making of which had occupied the attention of two generations of the most skilled artists of her tribe. Long chains of beads of gold intermingled with strings of elks' teeth that had been dipped in molten gold were wound about her neck and allowed to hang in loops below her waist. At this period of her career, as she afterward said, she had more than 100 offers of marriage.

"While I was a young girl I could easily have married any one of a dozen rich men," she said, "and at least three men proposed to me who have since become famous."

Her career of crime began about this time. She fell in love with a private soldier who was a bugler and a musician. As time passed it became evident that the beautiful semi-civilized child of the forest fairly worshipped the handsome young soldier. She would have passed through fire to have gratified his slightest wish. The bugler's comrades believed that he was sincere in his protestations of affection for the Indian girl.

A few days before the soldier lover was to receive an honorable discharge from the army a pretty young woman arrived at Fort Sill who made no attempt to conceal the fact that she was to become the bride of the bugler at an early date. Eager rivals were not lacking to carry the news quickly to Zalia. She lost little time in consummating a horrible revenge.

The unsuspecting and unfaithful lover was lured to a former trysting place in a grove of trees not far from the Indian girl's house. There the half-civilized girl met him with a stiletto in her bosom, and, after rebuking him and abusing him with the stinging tongue of an educated savage she threw her arms about his neck and drove the keen little blade into his heart. Kissing the blood and foam from his dying lips as she gently let the limp form sink upon the grass, she muttered, "Now the white face woman can have you." Then she left the body where it lay under the trees.

She knew well enough that she would be accused of the murder, and she lost no time in making her escape from the territory. Dressed in a suit of her brother's clothes and mounted on her famous black horse, she at once set out in the direction of old Mexico.

A small body of soldiers struck her trail the next day, and they came in sight of her just at sunset when she was in the act of plunging her horse into the Red river. Several whisky peddlers were encamped in a grove near the crossing, and when they saw the soldiers they supposed that they were about to be attacked, and they sprang to their arms and poured a shower of rifle balls into the ranks of the advancing dragoons.

Zalia quickly comprehended the situation, and, drawing her revolver, she eagerly joined the newly discovered allies. The soldiers were surprised and repulsed. Zalia while firing with rapidity and precision sang an Indian war song. Galloping from one strategic point to another, she laughed and sang and shouted as if she were intoxicated with the joy of battle. The peddlers thought that she was insane.

She told them that the "blood of forty generations of warriors was boiling in her veins."

"That was the way in which she started on a career of crime and devilry. True, there was fierce blood in her veins, yet with the faithful love of a true husband how different her passionate nature might have become. As an Indian maiden she could never forget or forgive a lover's betrayal."

MET DEATH IN FIERCE GALE.

Sailors Who Abandoned a Ship Drowned—Those Remaining Aboard Saved.

Four of the twenty members of the crew of the fishing schooner Fish Hawk lost their lives recently after abandoning their vessel, which had struck and was pounding heavily on Peaked Hill bars, at the north end of Cape Cod, says a dispatch from Highland Light, Mass. Five others, including Captain Bly, who followed their four companions over the side, had a severe six hour tussle against a freezing sea and gale in a small dory, but managed to reach Provincetown harbor.

The deaths and suffering would have been avoided had all stayed by their vessel, which a few minutes afterward made a miraculous escape from one of Cape Cod's most deadly traps and four hours later was safely anchored in Provincetown harbor.

The Fish Hawk was fishing off Cape Cod when the weather became threatening and the wind worked around into the northeast. Captain Bly decided to run into Provincetown, but before he reached the end of the cape the wind had increased to a gale, and presently the little vessel fetched up on the dreaded Peaked Hill bars. Captain Bly, believing that there was little hope of saving his vessel, turned his signal torch and then ordered his crew into the boats.

Four of the seamen jumped into a dory, which was almost immediately capsized in the surf. Captain Bly and four others who left the vessel a few minutes later, saw their unfortunate companions struggling in the surf and endeavored to reach them, but failed.

Before the rest of the crew could follow their skipper the wind and sea had driven the Fish Hawk over the bar and into deeper water, from which she was navigated into Provincetown harbor.

The Sensible Snail

Master Snail was an ambitious chap who wanted to make a name and fortune for himself. So one day he went to a merchant bug who owned a big building and said:

"I would like you, sir, to give me a position here."

"Well," said the merchant bug, "you seem to be a pretty smart little chap, and I will give you a position to run the elevator."

"I will take the job," said the snail. All he had to do was to stand in the elevator car, and when any one got in and said, "Let me off at the fourth floor," he would turn a wheel and up the elevator would go to the fourth floor. And if it was the second or the third or the fifth floor it was just the same, and if any one wanted to come down in the elevator it was just as easy.

Master Snail certainly had a good position, for he got $3 a week, and think what you can buy for three whole dollars! But one day he grew dissatisfied, and he went to the merchant bug and said he thought he should be paid $4 a week.

The merchant bug stuck his foot up on his desk and looked at Master Snail from top to toe. Then he said, "My boy, I am sorry, but I cannot pay you more than $3 a week."

And what do you suppose Master Snail did then? He gave up his position? No, indeed! Like a sensible fellow, he went back to the elevator car and kept at work.

"I will hold on to this job until I get another," said he. "For I had better be getting $3 a week than be out of work and getting nothing."—Detroit Journal.

The Foxy Elephant

Once upon a time a great crowd of men went out to catch a number of the big elephants to show them in a circus. The elephants heard that they were coming and they made all haste to get out of the way.

But there was one big fellow who thought that he could deceive the men and decided to try a daring plan. Taking a seat on a large stone at the side of the road, he filled a pipe with tobacco, and was pulling away contentedly when the men came along.

"Isn't that a funny elephant?" said one.

"It certainly is," replied another. "Just see him sitting there smoking his pipe and paying no attention to us at all!"

all. I should think that he would be afraid that we would carry him off to the circus."

"It is really strange," another one added.

Then they all sat down and watched the elephant for a little while and talked about what would be the best thing for them to do about him.

"I'll tell you what I think," finally said one of the men; "this elephant is already a circus elephant, and he would not run away from us if he could. The best thing to do is to leave him here and go on after the others. When we have caught them we can come back and get him."

So they all went off to catch the other elephants, and, of course, no sooner had they got out of sight when Mr. Foxy Elephant made tracks for a safe place where they never could get him.—Chicago Tribune.

The Funny Duckling

There was once a funny little duckling who was always going about doing something curious that made everybody laugh at him. Somebody told him that if he did not want to get wet when it rained he had better buy himself an umbrella. So off Mr. Duckling went to the umbrella store and bought himself an umbrella. He stuck it under his arm and walked down the road just as proud as ever he could be.

It made them all laugh louder than before, for none of them could see what use a duckling would ever have for an umbrella. But the duckling did not know any better. He carried that umbrella around under his arm day after day, hoping it would rain.

Well, finally one day it did rain. It rained in sheets, and the wind blew as it had never blown before. Mr. Duckling went out into the road, and, of course, everybody was there to see.

Up went the umbrella, and up went Mr. Duckling with it, for a big gust of wind just lifted them both in the air and swept them over the heads of the spectators and into the top of a tree about a mile away.

It took the little duckling half a day to untangle himself from the limbs of the tree and get down to the ground.
